Have you ever been to Britain? Britain is a country located in the west part of Europe. It is also called the United Kingdom. The UK consists of four regions: England, Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland. Each area has its own features, and you can enjoy both its unique culture and rich nature.

Compared with Japan, the temperature is not much different from that of Japan in winter. However, even in summer, it's cool and the highest temperature is about 20° C. The weather can change a lot. It often rains but it doesn't rain heavily, so most people wear hooded clothes and don't use umbrellas. June to September, when there are few rainy days and the temperature is just right, is the best time to travel.

Now I recommend two places to visit. First, you should visit the British Museum. There are many museums in the UK that you can enter without ①(pay) an admission fee, and the British Museum is one of them. The museum has about 8 million collections, and some of them are on display. One of the most famous collections is the Rosetta Stone. Many of you have ②(see) the name in a history book, right?

Second, I recommend going to Stratford-upon-Avon. About 150km northwest of London, Stratford-upon-Avon is known as the birthplace of Shakespeare. It is said that Shakespeare was born in 1564 and ③(spend) his childhood there. It is a popular destination for tourists. It is open to the public as a small museum.

In Britain, there are many other wonderful places you should visit, such as Westminster Abbey, Buckingham Palace, and the Lake District that was featured in Peter Rabbit. Why don't you visit Britain in the future?

In Japan, we can always get food, water and clothes, and take trains or buses to schools or hospitals. We think it is natural to do these things. But people in many other countries don't have them. About 150 countries are behind in industry and technology. And the people in those countries have to live on only about 100 or 200 yen each day. Those countries are (A) developing countries and about 80 % of the people in the world live in them.

There are many problems in developing countries. People in some parts of the countries can't get water in their houses and have to walk for a (①) time to get it. Many babies die because there are no hospitals near their houses. And many people can't go to schools and can't read or write. So they have a hard time finding good jobs.

Japan sells many products and technologies to developing countries. From those countries, Japan buys natural resources which are used in our industries and food which is needed for our lives. So developing countries and Japan are important partners. ②(make / supporting / those countries / can / their lives) better. And it is also good for industries and people's lives in Japan.

Japan spends a lot of money to support developing countries and sends a lot of volunteers to work there. It is important for Japan to do these things for those countries as a partner. And it is also important for us to think about the things we can do.

There are many things that each of us can do to support developing countries. Let's take an example. If you make mistakes on a postcard, what will you do? Don't throw it away. It is still useful. Some groups do volunteer activities by (B) these postcards to get some money for developing countries. In one developing country, a child can go to school for a year with 280 of these postcards.
